

Jackfield Tile Works Wins Top National Award

Craven Dunnill Jackfield the Shropshire based specialist ceramic tile manufacturer has been awarded the ultimate accolade and named as the winner of the Excellence in Manufacturing 2012 award by its national trade association. The company is established as the country's leading producer of heritage tiles, such as encaustics and geometrics, for the historic building sector and has in recent years made a name developing new production techniques to create bespoke, contemporary tiles for the design sector.

The Tile Association (TTA) presented Craven Dunnill Jackfield with the prestigious award and Bridgnorth based, sister company Craven Dunnill with the Floor Tile of the Year award at the 14th annual Awards dinner, which was held at the Birmingham Hilton Hotel on Saturday April 21st April. Adrian Blundell, Production Director at Craven Dunnill Jackfield was there to receive the award: "It's immensely pleasing for the team at Jackfield to be recognised for their work and satisfying to know we are continuing the tradition of innovation and outstanding craftsmanship long associated with the company since 1872".

Craven Dunnill Jackfield is best known for the tiles it manufactures for major renovation projects of historical buildings such as The Palace of Westminster, London Underground and Newcastle Theatre and works with Designers to project manage and create contemporary mural installations and specialist contemporary tile collections.
